That the children miss. ing are chiefly of the female sex, and that almost invariably a hag of the worst | cry of " progress" therefore so condemned character is found to be mixed up in the | by Indian papers is but the necessity of matter, points to but one conclusion as to self existence in China. "The tyrannithe fate for which they are reserved. In other cases, when male children have been the victims, the outrage has almost invariably found to have been prompted by the hopes of "squeezing" the relatives by obtaining a ransom, which in most cases is willingly paid to the scoundrels who make kidnapping a regular business. His Excellency fully recognizes the fact that we cannot afford in Hongkong to permit this domestic imitation of brigand life, and evidently willing to use every means at his disposal for its repression. kidnapping of men is happily a thing of the past in Hongkong, so far as can be ascertained, and the scarcely less abominable crime-some would say more abominable-of taking children, must at all hazards be put down. We must, however, take the liberty of doubting whether the sum offered as a reward for informations is sufficient to induce informers to come forward. The ransom demanded for stolen children, except from the very poorest class, is usually some 50 or dollars, and this would allow the payment of a higher sum to the possible informer as hush-money. We however presume that the sum named has been fixed after due consideration, and that it is deemed sufficient. The notification is at least satisfactory as shewing that the attention of His Excellency has been

A TYRANNICAL (1) POLICY. THE recent outrage at Tangchow near | ed a penalty of $5 in seven or eight cases. Chinkeang (reported in another column) irresistibly recalls to mind the protests which a certain section of speakers and writers—including some of our Indian boatmen and a Chinese prostitute with contemporaries—are in the habit of making against what they are pleased to day evening, and with having attempted to call the "tyrannical" policy advocated sell a bottle of shamshu (produced). Mr in our own and the columns of other Blaney remarked that he had been contijournals in China. There is always considerable difficulty in meeting the arguments they put forth, because they start 29, Prince Albert, for H'kong, Ballast from premises which they assume to be their clothes, -- Prisoners (boatmen) pleaded correct—as they are in the abstract no doubt-but which are totally inadmissible when applied to actual facts in China. Suppose, for instance, that some person entrenched behind a strongly situated rock were to amuse himself by picking off with a rifle every one who approached his retreat,—that he did not know and had never seen the persons whom he thus killed, had no positive knowledge of their intentions, and left those he wounded to die as they fell without succour or burial. Suppose further that he was not at war with their countrymen in the ordinary sense of the term, and that nevertheless he exerted himself to the utmost to kill, maim, or destroy all who approached him. The conduct of such a man, viewed from one point of view alone, would be pronounced atrocious. But let it be once understood that the solitary man was a traveller in the American West, and that those whom he thus destroyed were Indians of a tribe which the previous experience of others had warned him, would infallibly take his life if he did not take theirs, and the whole aspect of the story changes We desire to shew in what way the position of foreigners as regards the Chinese is analogous to the position of our supposititious traveller to the Indians, though happily to a degree less mortal.

We have consistently advocated the "strong arm" with China for precisely the same reason which justified the foreigner in shooting his Indian/visitors. If he did not dispose of them, they would quickly dispose of him. China presents. itself to European nations in the aspect of a power which claims, but has no power to enforce. precisely the same respect from them which we claimed from the natives of India, and now claim, and enforce, from all savage nations. Whatever may be the moral beauty of assertions regarding the "equal rights" of all mankind, or the claims of black or coppercolored races to equality with ourselves etc., etc., etc., we all know that practically such assertions are mere rubbish. There is no such thing possible in the present constitution of things as "equality" between a highly-civilized and (as a well known American wag christened the Chinese) a "highly uncivilised" race. No amount of declamation will alter this. in fact, and with fact alone can we deal, This must be conceded by our opponents, or we cannot start from equal grounds. If they do not concede it their arguments go for nothing with us, and we can then only attack the basis of their assertions, This point, however, conceded we next come to the very familiar axiom that if two things are not equal to each other one must be greater or less than the other. Now the idea which evidently pervades the minds of the writers and speakers to whom we have alluded, is, that if we tranquilly accept the fact that we are the greater, the Chinese will, with equal tranquillity, assume themselves to be the less. And they interpret every cry for "action" in meaning a demand for the wanton exhibition of insoleut power on our part. Herein lies their losing ground. There is no pause for us, it must be "forward" or "retreat." The cal instinct which clutches the unresisting

Chinaman by the throat and says 'give me what I choose '" is simply a necessity.

Most readers have felt that if David

Copperfield had clutched Uriah Heep in this manner there would have been a marked improvement in that slippery

An attack has been made by some two hundred villagers on the Pootung side upon a policeman, who had been sent there to effect an arrest. It appears that some robbere's had taken place from a godown in the settlement, and that an inhabitant of the village gave such information to the police as led to tracing the theft to some others living there. In consequence of this, they induced the Teanaou to confine this man in heavy chains, and the policeman in question who went down in uniform to release aim was set upon by half the village, and had to fire his pistol in sel prote tion. Upon this, the villagers ceased o make further demonstration, and we are glad to hear that the affir is being thoroughly investigated. KELUNG.

M. Kopsch, Acting Commissioner Customs, at Kelung, says-The small chop of Tea exported this quarter by Chinese went to Macao via Hongkong, where it is mixed with Canton Teas. As the coarseness of Tamsui Tea renders it unfit for the European market, partly on account of Native ignorance in manipulating and firing the leaf, it has occurred to me that much of this Tea might be made into Brick Tea for the Siberian market. Brick Tea "is made of the coarser leaves and upper branches of the Tea plant, and does not undergo the various processes of manipulation and desicention to which Black and other Teas prepared for European consumption are subjected to, but, when in its natural state, is moistened by a simple application of steam, and then compressed in a wooden mon'd into the form of bricks (whence its name.)"

Such an apparently simple process might in all probability be taught the natives, and which, I fancy, would be cheaper to the merchant than introducing skilled Tea firers from the mainland to prepare a common leaf, which, if ever improved by care in its cultivation or by the introduction of superior plants, must necessarily take some years, and then there is room to doubt whether Formosa Teas will ever be able to

The two poets above-mentioned flourished a considerable length of time before the period of the removal of the Capital, and from a period of very high antiquity. The work called Sze Lui Fu 事類賦, published about A.D 1000, quotes, indeed, a passage from the Yang Yü King 春魚經 or Treatise on Fish-rearing (which I have never seen mentioned elsewhere), to the following effect: "Wei, Prince of Tai, inquired of Tao Chu Kung (the name assumed by Fan Li, the Chinese Crossus, s.o. 470) by what art he had accumulated his enormous wealth. WHERE A FULL STOP IS WANTED, -To the Girl of the Period. -Punch. THE Rangoon Times, in an article which intelligently urges the construction of the railway between Rangoon and Prome, states that as many as 10,000 labourers at one lime were employed on the embankments at Myanoung and Henzadah last year. Most of them are people who came from Upper Burnish, some to settle some to return with their earnings. Were land largely reclaimed from the overflow of the Irrawaddy and Hlein rivers and were work constantly to be had, largers number would settle in the province greatly to its advantage. This subankment will form a great portion of any line of railway to Prome. The writer advises the British India Navigation Company to lower their charge of Rs. 40 for a deck passage from Singapore to Rangoon, in order to encourage such an immigration of Chinese into Burmah as would eventually react most favourably on the Company's profits Government should efforts to induce Chinamen to settle there.

The lad had been reading Paul Cl ford, a copy of which was found in his carpet bag, till he fancied hinfself a highwayman, and wrote a letter to his immediate superior, signed "Captain Claude." " You know my real name," he writes, "now know me as Captain Claude." The little fool seems to have stolen about 25t., and lived for three days at Portland at the rate of 500l. a year, spending 11. a bills for wine. Ma Childrens, in a thoughtful speech, has called attention to the growing costliness of our Civil Establishments. The departments are always increasing the number of officers. clerks, and other agents, and selaries and pensions are always rising, till last year we spent more than 12 000,000%, and the wages of the Civil Service exceeded by two millions the united wages for officers and men of both Army and Navy together. The analogy is not quite perfect, as the country does not suppose that it pays officers in the Army, but it is a striking one nevertheless. The civil expenditure keeps creeping up because no one is jealous of it. Mr Childers' remedy is for the House to support the Treasury more strongly in repressing applications and for the Treasury itself to restrict the application of competition. The departmentaget men much better than they want. have to pay for students when charity-school children would do.
